"THE WIFE FOR ME."

Horace Hastings was a sober, sensible, and enterprising bachelor, of some seven and twenty years, who, having obtained an excellent reputation by his industry and integrity, and having made himself useful to the mercantile firm in Boston, with whom he had served an apprenticeship, was at | length invited to a partnership in the concern. For some time he had been encouraged to anticipate this elevation, and he socrowded, he had but little leisure to mourn hurrying season was over, and hours each day hung heavy upon his hands, he could not help thinking how delightful it would housekeeper. be, had he but a house, and a gentle wife of his own. He found her sprightly, cheerful, and accomplished, and he thought, a little more graceful, than Jane, who was the elder, or Charlotte, who was younger than her. He thought a little more meanly of hunself for having taken her to be a hired girl in the family, but not a whit more meanly of her for having revealed herself in that capacity. And his perplexity was somewhat increased, as he sat down on his bedside in the chamber to which he was shown by his bost, and said to himself, "Which of the three?"

In the morning, after a night's sound sleep-for he was not sufficiently in love to keep him awake-he entered the breakfast room, and was joined by the young ladies, who had first welcomed him. Sarah was not yet visible, but when they sat down at fee, Sarah came smiling in behind a clean white aprove and with a steaming pile of hot . buckwheat cakes in her hand, which, from the hue of her cheeks, she had just been fire, and not by any sense of degradation, on account of the office she so gratefully and returned to the kitchen, when a she I plate of cakes, and bear ifully baked by her own skill. The next day was the outer limit of his visit, and as he stood at the window after breakfast, he saw Sarah, with that witching white apron, trip out into the orehard to shake down some apples-for it was haking day and pies were to be made. Horace strolled out after her, and shook the appletree, and helped pick up the apples, and carried the basket as they returned slowly, very slowly, to the house. What it was he whispered in her car she never told, but seemed not displeased, though evidently surprised and a little frightened.

PROTECTION TO INDUSTRY.

En It was an unfortunate day, says the Baltimore American, when the question of protection to American industry was made a party question; it is unfortunate that it continues to be one now. The issue is not between tival interests ; it is not a contest between landbolders and manufacturers; it is not really and truly a conflict of sectional interests; it is not as in England a struggle between classes. Because manufactures have become more generally established in some quarters than in others, prejudices have been appealed to and misrepresentations have been made and repeated to the effect that the protective system was designed for the special benefit of the manufacturing districts, at the cost and to the injury of the it is very clear that manufactures could be viously exist, yet where the natural facilities abounded, as in States or sections where

A gentleman was at the American Hotel at the time who knew the boy, consequently no suspicion rested on his conduct that his older acquaintance did not readily and anxiously remove. Before the boy took the cars homeward on the morning I saw him, he, in conjunction with parties who were delighted with the pluck of the little fellow, sold the horse; after which the amount of profit gained upon the original bill against the Portsmouth butcher-deducting the boy's ride home-was 88.15. If that youth is not a full-blooded Yankee I am mistaken. Subsequent inquiry proved the truth of every statement the

MON SCHOOLS. School directors may establish German Schools under the Common school law, or cause German and English to be taught in the same school, but the Board of Directors cannot be required to cause German to be taught .-They should consult the wishes of the people of their district in this regard, and if any considerable number of Germans desire to have their children instructed in their own language, their wishes should be gratified. The directors have exclusive jurisdiction over this subject and from their decision apon it there is no appeal, the Superintendent having only the power to advise. If the voice of the people is not respected by them the only remedy is to elect persons who will respect it. All acts, or parts of acts, relative to commun schools, passed previous to April 7, 1849, which are inconsistent with or are supplied by the act of that date, are repealed. Some acts previous to that date reduced the number of directors in certain districts to three. All those and similar acts are repealed, and every district must elect six directors in the manner provid-

If he does not take security he is personally responsible for any loss that may be sustained.

Collectors must pay over the tax collected by them to the person who is Treasurer at the time payment is made.

compel scholars to go to either of the schools within the district of their residence, if they go at all, but this right or power should not be arbitrarily exercised. Where a scholar can be more conveniently accommodated in an adjoining district the directors should make such arrangement as is provided for in section eleven sub-districts, though in the latter case the directors are not required to make the arrangement designated by the law, but they should

There is not, and cannot be, a general, unalterable rule laid down in regard to the distribution of school funds among sub-districts.-The directors are required by law to pay for the erection, purchase or renting of the necessary number of school houses for the entire district, and for "all necessary expenses of fuel and repairs," out of the general fund of Corn and Smoke Houses, Stabling the district, (and this duty is not in any manner changed or avoided by the formation of water near the house. sub-districts,) and they are also required by law to appropriate a sufficient sum of money to each sub-district to keep all its schools (such number as is necessary to accommodate all the scholars.) in operation "no less than three i the distribution of the balance of the funds in Farm. The Directors of some districts appropriate distribution may be a very good one in many instances, if the requirements of the law before mentioned are first fulfilled, but will not answer as a general rule. A sub-district of ginia. thirty scholars may require a teacher of superior attainments, one whose services cannot be obtained for less than (say) thirty dollars per month, while another having fifty scholars might be as well cared for and its schools as efficiently taught for (say) twenty dollars per month, depending upon the attainments of the scholars. The wants of sub-districts must be considered in the distribution of the school funds and not merely the number of scholars.

It is manifestly wrong for the School Directors to appropriate a sufficient amount of money to one sub-district to keep its schools in operation six, eight or ten months, while to another a sum barely sufficient to keep its schools open three months is appropriated. Money can only be rightfully appropriated by the Directors with the view to keep the schools of their district, and of the sub-districts within its bounds. in operation as near as may be an equal length

The amount of taxes paid by any neighborhood or sub-district should not be permitted to influence the amount of school funds appropriated to each school or sub-district to the least possible extent. A sub-district containing ony twenty scholars may pay a tax of fitty dollars, while another having one hundred scholars may pay only the same amount. The first would require only one school, and the second at least two. If the scholars were of equal grade it would cost (say) twenty dollars per month to teach the school of the first and forty dollars per month to teach those of the second. Under these circums ances, the Directors should appropriate twenty dollars per month to the former and forty dollars to the latter.

While such circumstances exist there can be no general rule to regulate the distribution of school funds to sub-districts, and such distribution can only be properly made by the Directors by complying first with the requirements of the law and then distributing the balance of the funds in such manner as to do

THE ADAMS SENTINEL AND GENERAL ADVERTISER.

From the Walk State Journal Pennsylvania and the Presidency. The late Whig State Convention was ful ly and ably represented, and the entire sestion was characterized by great union and tarmony. General Winneld Scott received the almost manimons wate of the Convention) will be counted as follows: sion for President in 1852. This result | States. 1852, 1848 | States. was anticipated, and is in accordance with the sentiments of the Whig party of the N Hampshire 5 State. So far as Pennsylvania is concerned, but one sentiment prevails. The Whigs are nearly unanimous in their preference for the veteran Hero, Winfield Scott, as their Standard Bearer in the next campaign. Highly as the Whigs of the old Keystone ent and admire Millard Fillmore for the manly and patriotic discharge of his Presi-dential duties, and cordially as they endorse the eminently, wise policy of his Administration, domestic and foreign, they are nevorthaless devoted in their attachments to the gallant old "Hero of a laindred battley," ballon to that of any other man living. In Pennsylvania the name of Gen. Scott will awaken confidence and inspire enthusiasm among the masses everywhere, and carry us in triuming them daily of all professing Whigs to acquiesce it is said, will increase the number one the party, we place the name of General Winfield Scott at the head of our columns, as the choice of Pennsylvania for the next Presidential nomination by the Whig National Convention.

However, should the Delegates of the great Whig party of the Nation, in their ed gentlemen who are rival aspirants for the Presidential nomination, we have only to say that the Whigs of the old Keystone, ever loyal to the party, will cheerfully eindorse the action of the Convention, and cordially support its nomince, whoever he may course, and holdly preach treason and oppose vention, if that nominee be other than Gen. Scott. And from such friends the gallant old soldier may well exclaim "save me !" We are happy to inform our Whig friends abroad, however, that these political disorganizers are "like angels' visits, few and far poles. between," and that their treasonable course is indiguantly frowned down by the honest masses of the great conservative Whig party of the old Keystone, who are sound to the core, and who will rally with enthusiastic unanimity around the Standard Bearer selected by the Whig National Convention, whether it be Scott, Fillmore, Crittenden or Webster.

We request our National Legislators to look at the agricultural interest, and man the present tariff. The subjected table pounds his corn, instead of grinding it into breadstuffs since the tariff went into effect : although a seekuded, yet apparently a happy 1846-47

It is quite unavailing for the advocates tion the fact that the tariff of 1846 has made for the benefit of the American farmers. Its practical operation has been for we please, but Europe will take nothing and they are allowed to sell to none but but our hard cash for them, except on ex-

From the Whig State Journal. Pennsylvania and the Presidency.

The late Whig State Convention was fulsion was characterized by great union and the almost unanimous vote of the Convention) will be counted as follows: tion for President in 1852. This result was anticipated, and is in accordance with the sentiments of the Whig purty of the State. So far as Pennsylvania is concerned, but one sentiment prevails. The Whigs are nearly unanimous in their preference for the veteran Hero. Winfield Scott, as their Standard Bearer in the next campaign. Highly as the Whigs of the old Keystone respect and admire Millard Fillmore for the manly and patriotic discharge of his Presi dential duties, and cordially as they endorse the eminently wise policy of his Administration, domestic and foreign, they are nevertheless devoted in their attachments to Florida the gallant old "Hero of a hundred battles," and prefer his nomination to that of any other man living. In Pennsylvania the name of Gen. Scott will awaken confidence and inspire enthusiasm among the masses everywhere, and carry us in triumph thro' duty of all professing Whigs to acquiesce in the action of the regular Conventions of the party, we place the name of General Winfield Scott at the head of our columns, as the choice of Pennsylvania for the next Presidential nomination by the Whig National Convention.

However, should the Delegates of the great Whig party of the Nation, in their wisdom select some of the other distinguished gentlemen who are rival aspirants for the Presidential nomination, we have only to say that the Whigs of the old Keystone, ever loyal to the party, will cheerfully endorse the action of the Convention, and cordially support its nomince, whoever he may be. It is true, a few indiscreet friends of Gen. Scott, in this State, whose zeal outruns their judgment, may counsel a different course, and boldly preach treason and opposition to the nominee of the National Convention, if that nominee be other than Gen. Scott. And from such friends the gallant old soldier may well exclaim "save me?" We are happy to inform our Whig friends abroad, however, that these political disorganizers are "like angels' visits, few and far between," and that their treasonable course is indignantly frowned down by the houest masses of the great conservative Whig party of the old Keystone, who are sound to the core, and who will rally with enthusiastic unanimity around the Standard Bearer selected by the Whig National Convention, whether it be Scott, Fillmore, Crittenden or Webster.

We request our National Legislators to look at the agricultural interest, and mark how it has suffered under the operation of the present tariff. The subjoined table shows the decline in the exportation of breadstuffs since the tariff went into effect :

1846-47 $27,000,000 1847-48 19,500,000 1848-49 23,700,00012,200,000 8,100,000

It is quite unavailing for the advocates of Free Trade any longer to call in question the fact that the tariff of 1846 has completely falsified the predictions of its authors. These men assured us that it was made for the benefit of the American farmwe please, but Europe will take nothing and they are allowed to sell to none but but our hard cash for them, except on ex- | Chinese. treme compulsion. Andrew Job, the Hermit, so well known in Hospital in the U. States. It presents a this part of the world, might not be unac- front of 930 feet, covers 10 acres, and conceptable to your readers.

He resides not far from the division line between Maryland and Pennsylvania, in man, about 80 years of age, a farmer; but Surgeons. carries on his farming operations rather different from his neighbors. He digs his ground with a muttock, and then marks it out with a wheelbarrow, picking off all the loose stones, as he goes along. He raises nothing but corn; plants it, and never works afterwards; so you may judge that he does not raise a very abundant crop. He sows no grass seeds, but mows his mendow 40 to 42 lands, and drags his hay home on two short poles.

Mr. Stanly and Gen. Scott.-The Hon. Edward Stanly, of North Carolina, is out in a letter in relation to the Whiz candidate for the Presidency, the compromise and the position of his State. He states that Mr. Fillmore is the first choice of North Caroliun, and that no one not known to be in favor of the compromise as a finality can receive its vote. He says, however:

"But it is due to myself to say that I have never said, and will not now say, that I can't and won't go for Scott.'
